

Advisory

The analysis of needs is an ideal basis for important decisions. In terms of E-Learning, the effective requirement analysis often requires an analysis of the company's organisational structure, too.

Your Benefit

Past experiences show that time and effort spent analysing is ultimately profitable due to the following:

- Analysis leads to more stringent decision-making and rapid progress during the project; it lowers the project management costs.
- During the implementation of the LMS, learning solutions are defined more adequately and quicker, training and administration processes are designed more efficiently right from the start. Difficulty during the introduction phase is reduced, and employees are more satisfied.
- With a thorough requirement analysis, unnecessary follow-up costs can be avoided.
